

CHURN VALLEY HASH HOUSE HARRIERS

1608 - Kelmscott Manor - Richard & Popeye

We arrive at the home of William Morris on quiet serene evening when suddenly utter chaos with Willow and Toora charging round the car park.

New runners this week, sorry can't remember names, nice to see that Dick is keeping up his standards and bought Jem as he had promised her an evening out.

Normal briefing about hazards and length of trails and then for all keen gardeners the new compost bins must be viewed.

We set off around the car park zigzagging backwards and forwards, this must be the shortest trail ever when suddenly there is a breakthrough over a rickety bridge. Out towards the river, more milling about, then off again running by the Thames. On to a regroup on the now famous bridge where Simon and I jumped from all those years ago. Chris decides to join us halfway round in his car (at last a candidate for the hat). On again, lots of arrows pointing towards the river but still everybody is dry.

Good run, loads of regroups to keep everyone together on a very flat run. Never seen so much water and the only ones to get wet were the dogs.

No bags this week, sheep's hat was awarded to Brian for a misdemeanour behind a tree as still waiting for Chris to write a mag from the last time he had the hat.
